

I passionately believe that longevity as an Enterprise Adviser can be found in seeking mutually beneficial scenarios for both school and employer. Engaging with a SEND school has helped us at Aaron Services better educate our team on diversity and inclusion, inspiring us to offer more community value to our local contracts

Kirstie Payne , Enterprise Adviser

I get some much from this volunteering role. The more employer engagement young people have the better choices they make. I have a real passion for improving the future outcomes of young people

Nick Baxter, Enterprise Adviser

Being an Enterprise Adviser has made me a better employer, it has made me a better customer, and a better supplier. I am more aware of people I deal with in my business life, I have much better engagement from the people who work for me, including higher retention rates. The way we recruit and the way I run my business has changed!

Richard Osborne, Enterprise Adviser

As a business, we can be far more inclusive and focus our efforts on young people who don't traditionally get access to the range of opportunities we're able to provide. And by being more targeted we've been able to learn more about what works – for example we've changed when we recruit and when we ramp up our engagement activities

Rob Dodds, Enterprise Adviser

Being an Enterprise Adviser provides me the opportunity to collaborate with such a vibrant and engaged Network of proactive business leaders and organisations who have a genuine interest in enhancing young people's lives

Dan Lamoon, Enterprise Adviser

Being a small business owner, it helps me raise my profile and also have access and links into the community I wouldn't have otherwise

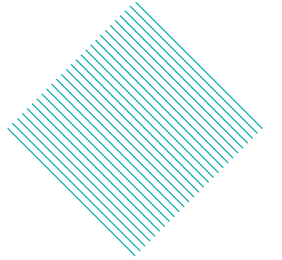

Daniel English, Enterprise Adviser

In Special Educational Needs (SEN) schools, the Enterprise Adviser role is a valuable resource for them in building connections and networks within the world of work. Being an Enterprise Adviser is all about helping the young people to get the most out of their careers education to reach their personal hopes and dreams. I've been volunteering as an Enterprise Adviser with the schools' Careers Leader focussing on outcomes for the students, which is very rewarding!

Dorothy Welsh, Enterprise Adviser

Being an EA is incredibly rewarding! I work with the Careers Leader in my school to make improvements to provision and get to see the impact these changes make. I've witnessed first-hand how careers education, when delivered well, can make a difference to how young people see the world of work and the opportunities available to them. I would 100% recommend the role to anyone thinking about getting involved
